Logan Annex sold

By Nicole Vaughn
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — The District 9 school board accepted a bid of $18,000 for the old Logan Annex Tuesday night, choosing not to take the advice of Mayor Von Dee Cruse and postpone the sale.

In a letter, Cruse had asked the board to "defer action" on the four-classroom school until a budget for Community Development projects could be drawn up by the city. Cruse said the city would be interested in working with the school board and the Granite City Park District to convert the Logan Annex and Webster School properties into neighborhood parks.

The board voted to sell the Logan Annex site and structure in the 2400 block of Logan Avenue for $18,000 to James and Elaine Holmes of Granite City.

Mack Johnson and Roy Koberna were absent. Monroe Worthen, school treasurer, voted against the sale.

Worthen proposed investigating where the city and park district stood on accepting the 76-year-old former school. The motion would have deferred action but it died for lack of a second.

"I don't want to be accused of not offering anything to West Granite," Worthen said. "I've been down that road before."

But other board members disagreed, referring to correspondence sent to the city earlier this year.

"This is an ambiguous letter from the city that is not even a bid," Paul Ray Bowler, board vice president, said. Bowler also said Cruse's letter was dated June 21, the final day that bids on the property were to be accepted.

James Holmes, the purchaser, was also upset that the sale might be postponed. "For a number of months we've been trying to buy the school," Holmes said. "I fail to see why we have to continue to wait when no one else has shown an interest."

Holmes was concerned that a postponement would allow more time for acts of vandalism to the building.

Holmes' wife was elated by the sale. "I can't believe we got it," she said yesterday. The couple plans to renovate the school into a single-family home they will call "Holmes Estates," she said.

"I'm very tickled to have a piece of local history," she said. "We want to make it one of the nicest, luxurious homes in West Granite." (Page 8A)

Lost sales force mill cutbacks

GRANITE CITY — National Steel, faced with millions of dollars in lost orders since rejection of its steelworker contract last week, will cut production by 25 percent at Granite City Steel and two other plants starting Saturday.

National spokesman Robert R. Toothman said Wednesday that customers had stopped orders on 330,000 tons of steel, worth about $165 million to the company. This left the company with two options: maintain production levels and sell the steel at a discount or balance production with orders.

Management chose the second option, Toothman said.

He also said the company's offer is still on the table, but added, "The company's position has been we cannot afford to give more (than has been offered)."

The United Steelworkers of America negotiating committee will convene this afternoon in Detroit. It has asked National Steel's negotiating team to attend to answer questions that might arise during the meeting.

Toothman said National's chief negotiator Richard P. Coffee and eight others will attend the meeting.

Saturday marks the start of the third fiscal quarter at National. The company has expected to produce 5 million tons of steel this year.

Both the union and the company are making plans for a strike in case the issues are not resolved. The current contract expires at midnight July 31.

Carnival starts tonight

GRANITE CITY — It will be a six-day Fourth of July Carnival at Wilson Park this year, which should bring a few extra people out to the gala event, said Park Director Steve Kessel.

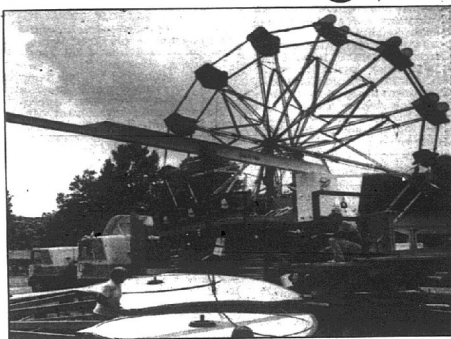

But Kessel said the celebration — though one day longer, owing to the 4th falling on a Tuesday — will be on about the same scale as in recent years.

The celebration culminates at 9 p.m. Tuesday, when a 45-minute fireworks display by Star Fireworks Co. of Danville will begin on baseball diamond 7.

Ray Swayear Rides of New Athens will again provide the carnival rides and games.

Kessel said the arts and crafts fair Sunday at the ice rink will be especially diverse, with 70 crafters featured. The show was organized by Park District Office Manager Sue Champion.

Twelve non-profit clubs will sell food. These include the Warrior Booster Club, the Mexican Honorary Commission, the Moose Lodge, the Moose Bowlers, the Gateway Business and Professional Women, the Jaycees, Cub Pack 19, Granite City Township Democratic Committee, Parents without Partners, the Ball Blazers, the Granite City Friendly Democrats and the Eagles.

THE TILT-A-WHIRL is assembled in the shadows of the Ferris wheel in Wilson Park Wednesday afternoon.

Times are: today, 6 to 11 p.m.; Friday, Saturday and Sunday, 1 to 5 p.m. reduced price matinee, with regular prices until 11 p.m.; Monday, 5 until 11 p.m.; and Tuesday, 1 to 11 p.m.

The arts and crafts fair will be held from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. Sunday at the ice rink, where music will be featured.

Friday, Saturday, Monday and Tuesday.

Musicians performing from 7 to 9 p.m. at the ice rink include the City Lights Band with Donna Bennett on Friday, the Country Music Machine on Saturday, the Alley Kats Polka Band on Monday and folk artist Chris Vallillo on Tuesday.

Madison Avenue gets new zoning

GRANITE CITY — Mayor Von Dee Cruse told aldermen last night he thought creating a Madison Avenue business district was a mistake, but they chose, unanimously, to ignore him.

Aldermen voted to make Madison Avenue, from the 2400 block to the 3000 block, the city's first B-1 zoning district.

The special zoning area is designed to allow an orderly transition from residential to commercial use and to provide protection to the surrounding residential areas.

The B-1 district restricts the area to retail businesses with hours of operation from 7 a.m. to 10 p.m. It also contains strict rules for screening, parking, access and signs — including requirements that do not apply to other commercial zoning districts.

Cruse said he agreed with specific zoning plans for a strike with limiting the type of businesses allowed to locate there. He said show repair, key maker and antique shops, the types of businesses listed as examples in the zoning ordinance, would not help the city at that location.

Cruse said anyone driving down Madison Avenue right now sees a dying street and, he said, if the B-1 zoning passed, the street would be completely dead in 10 years.

"Keep the restrictions, but allow businesses that can afford them to develop there," he said.

Alderman Jeff Worthen, chairman of the zoning committee, and Aldermen Virgil Kambarian, Paul Fisk, Andy Timko and Dan Brown, whose wards include Madison Avenue, disagreed with the mayor and called the plan "well thought out" and "near perfect."

"I guess I didn't sway any one," Cruse said after the vote. "I hope you're right and I'm wrong."

The meeting had been delayed a day to accommodate Granite City Night at Busch Stadium on Tuesday.

Parents, education keys to drug cure

Last of four parts

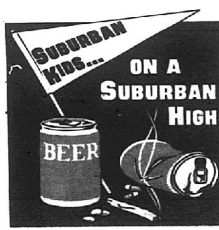

The prescription for the adolescent drug problem in the metropolitan bistate area doesn't come in as neat a package as some of the drugs that cause the problem.

Some authorities frankly admit it's impossible to stop the supply. The answer is to diminish demand, and eliminating illicit drug use entirely may be impossible.

Experts largely agree that drug education is the key to reducing the number of school-age children who experiment with drugs, and subsequently those who go on to have drug abuse or addiction problems.

But isolated programs, lectures, public service announcements and simplistic slogans do not work, some say. "It's an issue of duration and intensity," said Tom Fee, supervisor of community services for the St. Louis County Department of Human Resources youth programs. "A lot of research shows that one-shot deals don't work. Short series presented an hour at a time for four or five times have proven non-effective."

Delbert Boone, community relations representative of Parkside Lodge of St. Louis in Berkeley, was more emphatic about the futility of one-day efforts. "An awareness day is one day out of nine months," Boone said. "That's like trying to hit a bull in the butt with a flyswatter."

mercials are a bunch of bull," said Jerry, 17, who will be a senior this fall at Hazelwood West High School and has tried marijuana and LSD. "Rock Against Drugs on MTV and others, basically, they have made a lot of people more curious. I want to see some of it for myself."

At Granite City High School, about 35 teachers have been through training sessions at St. Elizabeth Hospital in Belleville, near symptoms of drug abuse. A "care team" composed of these teachers has thus far referred more than 20 students for counseling.

A group of students in a program called "Empathy" has referred 30 kids with drug problems for counseling. Still, students at the school say drug abuse there is rampant and that one-day informational programs like "Snowball" don't work.

Similarly, the temporary binges the media indulges in do little good, they say. "I think crack is advertised almost, said one 17-year-old who is a senior this fall at Granite City High School. He went through addiction treatment last year.

Tom, 15, who will be a junior this fall at St. Mary's High School in south St. Louis, had heard all the warnings about drugs from teachers and counselors before he developed a drug addiction, but he was skeptical of the source. "Coming from the people it was coming from it seemed weird," he said. "They've never been stoned before."

Renee Furniss, a recent graduate of McCue North High School, used to talk to younger students in the district about her addiction to alcohol, speed and marijuana. But she still wonders if such a speaker would have steered her clear of drugs, she said. "I don't know what can work," she said. "All I can do is tell them what's going on."

"I didn't listen to anybody," she said, referring to the period when she was using drugs. "I'd say, 'Oh forget you. That'll never happen to me.'"

Education efforts need to be orchestrated on several fronts, including at home, at school, via police departments and court systems and other private and public agencies and through society, in general, many agree.

But just where the emphasis should be and who will coordinate the effort is unclear.

Some progress against drug use is being made, primarily at the school level, Fee said. "It's definitely improving. There are more and more people out there with expertise in drug prevention and intervention."

Fee said "Mar" school are now hiring their own people rather than relying on outside experts."

"It's a long-term effort will be needed to make a dent in the numbers of school-age kids experimenting with drugs, he said.

"There's a huge majority of young people who are using substances. Even if there's a decline every year, there's going to be a problem for quite some time."

Fee said broad-based community-wide programs that incorporate several strategies can work. The strategies include:

- Providing alternative leisure and recreational activities that allow youths to feel good and have fun without using drugs.

Nine bicycles were reported stolen in Granite City within a 48-hour period between June 21 and June 29.

Hartigan hails state's upholding death law

Attorney General Neil F. Hartigan said the recent decision upholding the death penalty for Alton Coleman proves the Illinois statute meets constitutional standards.

"This is one of a series of decisions in which the Illinois death penalty has withstood judicial challenge," Hartigan said.

Other recent challengers include John Wayne Gacy, convicted of multiple murders, and Henry Brisbon, the 1-87 killer who was convicted of murder and then killed an inmate. Coleman, already convicted in Indiana and Ohio, is under death sentence in Illinois for the 1984 slaying of a young girl in Waukegan.

Coleman went on a murder rampage in other states until he was captured in Evanston. He is under death sentences for the murder of Tamika Turks of Indiana and Tonnie Storey and Marlene Walters of Ohio.

Charged, warrant served

Receiving a report from Venice Patrolman Neil Mize that he was following a motorist driving in an erratic manner who was northbound on Madison Avenue, a Granite City police sergeant saw the vehicle described in the 2000 block of Madison Avenue at 1:55 a.m. June 22.

The sergeant alleged the driver, later identified as John J. Yurkovich Jr., 26, of the 2900 block of Faith Avenue, was weaving the auto and crossed over the center line. The officer activated the squad car lights and the driver was pulled into a private driveway in the 2200 block of Madison Avenue.

Yurkovich was taken to police headquarters and charged with driving under the influence of alcohol and improper lane usage. He also was served an active warrant issued through the Pontoon Beach Police Department alleging failure to appear on a charge of illegal transportation of alcohol.

Auto located in river

A car stolen in Granite City was found in the St. Francis River, two miles south of Fish, Mo., it was reported Friday by a Missouri state trooper in Dexter, Mo.

Gregory R. Wumble of St. Louis reported his 1983 Silver Edition Peugeot sedan was stolen June 22 from the Pearle Vision parking area, 3305 Nameoki Road.

The radio and speakers had been removed prior to the car being recovered.

Transferred to county

After responding to a call to remove a man from an address in the 1000 block of Briarhaven Drive, officers were told by Betty R. Stearns of the address that Derek Stearns, 18, of the Briarhaven address had damaged telephones in the residence and she was forced to go to a neighbor's house to summon police.

Officers went inside the Stearns home and found a bedroom door had been blocked with furniture inside the room. They heard someone open a window and discovered Derek Stearns had removed a window screen and left the house.

Stearns was seen near some apartments and fled, being chased by the officers and caught at the rear of the 1000 block of Briarwood Drive, a report said.

Betty Stearns alleged Derek Stearns had taken $15 from a purse and then carried two telephones into the garage and stomped on the phones, until they were unusable.

Derek Stearns was charged with theft, resisting arrest, criminal trespass to property and criminal damage to property. Money was recovered from beneath a balcony in the 200 block of the Grant Park Apartments.

Derek Stearns appeared in the Granite City court June 22 and pleaded innocent. Bond was set at $1,000 on each charge by Judge Paul J. Riley. The suspect was transferred to the Madison County Jail in Edwardsville early Friday.

Shriners' fund gets check

By Valerie Evenden
Staff writer

PONTON BEACH — A check for $515 was presented to Potentate Orville Hommert of Alnash Shrine Temple at Tuesday's meeting of the Village Board of Trustees.

The money represented unused funds contributed by village businesses toward the construction and decoration of a float for the June 5 Shriners' parade in Granite City, according to Mary Rowden, float project chairman.

Rowden said materials retained from last year's float, together with some of the donated money for replacement items, were adequate to decorate the float which represented the village this year.

Each of the donors was notified by letter that any excess funds would be contributed to the Shriners' Burns Travel Fund to help with expenses of transporting severely burned children to the Burns Clinic in Cincinnati, Ohio, Rowden explained.

No one objected to the funds being donated for this purpose, she said.

"We want to thank everyone for the generosity and support extended to us for such a worthwhile purpose," Rowden said.

Kelly Hogan, a Shriner and past parade chairman, presented the check to Hommert.

"We asked Kelly to present the check because he has allowed us to use his building to construct and decorate the float for the past two years. And, he is a businessman in the village and a strong supporter of the project," Rowden said.

Serving on the float committee with Rowden were Gene and Doris Payne, Mary and Jerry Warren, Teri and Gary Rowden, Mary Shafer, Nancy Ballew, Jack Rogers, Jim and Diane Hill and Robbie Wilson.

Among those contributing to the village's second annual float project were Gene's Auto Body, Len's Amoco, Pontoon Shell, Phillip's 66 Quick Shop, Bear Foot Inc., LaMar Construction Co., Big 'G' Disposal, State Beauty and Barber Shop, Kelly Hogan Plumbing.

Bus fares to rise on local routes July 1

Fares on Bi-State local bus routes in Illinois will increase 15 cents for adults and 5 cents for children, elderly and disabled on July 1 as the second phase of a three-year incremental adjustment to match fares established by Bi-State as currently charged in Missouri.

There will be no increase in express fares or transfers.

The new Illinois local fare, beginning July 1, will be 75 cents for adults and 35 cents for children, elderly and disabled. This is still 10 cents below the current Missouri adult fare and 5 cents below the Missouri fares for children, elderly and disabled.

The price of the Illinois monthly Green Pass which is valid for unlimited riding on Illinois local service during the month of issue will increase to $27 from the current $22.

In June 1988, the Illinois transit districts serving Madison and St. Clair counties held public hearings regarding announced plans to make gradual reductions over a three-year period in the amount of funding provided to Bi-State for Illinois bus service.

For many years the districts have been paying an added amount, over that required, allowing passengers a much lower fare in Illinois than in Missouri, where there was no added funding, a spokesman said.

Because of increased costs for Bi-State service, including but not limited to new service due to traffic mitigation for bridge repairs, the overpayment was deemed no longer possible. This resulted in a gradual increase in Illinois local fares starting July 1 of last year.

Charges for other tickets and passes remain the same. For more information, persons may contact Bi-State Transit Information weekdays from 6 a.m. to 8 p.m. at 1-800-223-BUS in Illinois or 231-2345 in Missouri.

Kids and drugs: a special report

4A—Thursday, June 29, 1989
Granite City (Ill.) Press-Record

Questions and answers

The following interview was done with Dr. David Ohlms, medical director of the St. Louis Program at Deaconess Hospital and medical director of the St. Charles Program at St. Joseph Health Center in St. Charles.

QUESTION: What should parents do if they smell alcohol on their child?

ANSWER: Parents should tell the child they smelled liquor and that they will talk to the child when he is sober. Do not try to talk to the child while he is under the influence of alcohol or drugs.

QUESTION: What should parents do if their child begins to have friends parents find unacceptable?

ANSWER: Parents should talk to the child about their concerns, while realizing they have little control over who their children are going to see—if not at home, then at school. Parents should be as concrete as possible about what it is they disapprove of about the new friends. Parents also should make every effort to have the "unacceptable" friends to their home; they may find they like the friends, or they may find concrete reasons why they dislike the friends, which they can explain to their child.

QUESTION: What should parents do if they find drug paraphernalia in their child's room or clothing?

ANSWER: Parents should immediately confiscate the paraphernalia and talk to their child, after discussing and agreeing upon a plan of action themselves. If the parents are in doubt about whether or not they've found drug paraphernalia, they should take it to a professional.

QUESTION: What should parents do if they think their child is using drugs, but the child denies it?

ANSWER: Parents should definitely take their child to a professional counselor who specializes in chemical dependency. It's a real skill to break through a child's denial of his drug use. Professionals have problems doing it. Parents definitely will have problems doing it.

QUESTION: What should parents do if their child stops talking to them?

ANSWER: If the child won't talk or gives an answer that is unbelievable when confronted about any behavior that seems suspicious, parents should bring their child to a professional counselor who specializes in chemical dependency. Sometimes it takes a professional to ask the right questions in the right way.

Parents should also go to the professional themselves. Sometimes parents, having only suspicions of drug abuse, are ambivalent about forcing their child to go to a professional. But parents can talk about their concerns with a professional. Most of the time, the professional can ask specific questions about the child's behavior and, based on the responses, give a fairly accurate opinion on whether the child should be evaluated for chemical dependency.

CARDINAL RULES: No. 1—Parents should accept unacceptable behavior. They don't need to diagnose their child themselves, but they can gather evidence. No. 2—If parents still have doubts about the possibility their child is chemically dependent after talking to their child, they should seek the advice of a professional.

Role models and funding needed to change trend

Some societal changes are needed to help reduce the number of adolescent drug users, experimenters and abusers, experts say.

Adults who reach for the medicine chest every time they don't feel good are implicitly encouraging children to do the same thing with illicit drugs, some experts say.

"It begins by our own messages we send as adults to kids," said Claire Nelson, the drug intervention counselor at Lindbergh High School. Authorities said funding of drug education and intervention programs also needs to take a higher priority.

Some school-based drug education programs lack continuity because they are often started with state or federal grant money, said Tom Fee, supervisor of community services for youth programs within the St. Louis County Department of Human Resources.

These programs are usually funded one year at a time and when the grant runs out or the state and federal funding runs out, the programs are gone. "The curriculum goes on the shelf," said Barry Hagar, director of the Christian Hospital Recovery Center.

"It's a lot easier to go to the drug store than it is to develop a pill for you, no matter what the problem is. It makes the things go away."

Kids get the impression that there is instant relief available for every kind of physical and emotional pain, he said.

Headache or inability to deal with a problematic relationship, said Barry Hagar, director of the Christian Hospital Recovery Center.

"It's a lot easier to go to the drug store than it is to develop a pill for you, no matter what the problem is. It makes the things go away."

"America wants to believe that the drug problem is a bunch of bad kids," said Delbert Boone. "There aren't any bad kids."

"America tells us that the way to feel good for sure is put something in your mouth. Our kids are only doing exactly what we've told them to do. Only now that it is epidemic proportions, we realize something is wrong."

Counselors said adults should be wary of giving the impression to children that all medication cures ailments instead of maling the symptoms and effects of ailments.

* Teaching knowledge of drugs and what they do and their harmful effects.

* Helping to better communication and personal skills such as decision-making, problem-solving, goal-setting, leadership, stress management and self-esteem.

Several counselors said that teaching self-esteem was very important as early in life as possible is an important approach to dampening demand for drugs.

"We were concerned a few years back that it (drug use) was going to reach the junior high," said Virgil Kassing, guidance counselor at Collinsville High School. "We now know it is at the junior high. Our concern now is the elementary (schools)."

"Kids with good self-esteem rarely get involved heavily with drugs," said Susan Rutledge, a counselor employed by the Christian Hospital Recovery Center assigned to the Hazelwood School District. "The kids with good self-esteem may try drugs but usually are able to make good decisions about drug use."

But even kids with a high level of self-esteem can fall prey to drug addiction through a genetic risk if there is a history of addiction in the child's family, said Dr. David Ohlms, medical director of the St. Louis Program at Deaconess Hospital and medical director of the St. Joseph Health Center in St. Charles.

"Children of alcoholic systems need to know they're at higher risk," Ohlms said. "Children need to be taught facts about drugs so they can make intelligent decisions," he said.

Teaching self-esteem and at-risk awareness isn't nearly as effective without parents reinforcing the education, some experts said.

"We have to have parental support," said Franklin McCallie, principal of Kirkwood High School. "You can't fight it (the drug problem) without talking about it. Nobody wants this school to have a bad reputation."

"We have what we think is a

Preparing this series ...

great school, but we have flaws and weaknesses. To me that's no surprise."

"People with the power are parents," said Kimberly Frank, coordinator of the adolescent program at the Christian Hospital Recovery Center in Florida.

"They can make things happen quicker than any hospital, court system or school district."

The most important thing parents should do is develop a relationship of open communication with their children as early in life as possible, several experts said.

"You can't sit your child down at the age of 14 and give them the 'don't drink' lecture and expect that to work," said Frank, of the Christian Hospital adolescent unit.

If a child has been drinking or coming to a parent's attention about that behavior. "As a parent that should concern you," Ohlms said. "It is an absolute parental responsibility" to establish adverse consequences for children who drink.

Koplow said families should develop a drug-use policy and discipline for breaking that pol-cy before first-use is detected. Development of an honest relationship with open communication is essential also, if a family is to overcome the discovery that a child is experimenting with drugs, she said.

"If you don't have that, you're in real trouble and need, probably, professional guidance," Koplow said.

Confronting children about possible drug use can be difficult even for those parents who have good communication with their children. "Parenting is not an easy job at all," Frank said.

"People need to learn as much about it as they can."

And detecting drug use isn't always easy, either.

If children are asked about possible drug use and deny it, sometimes parents have to be patient despite their fears, Koplow said. "Parents may have to, at times, wait it out and pray," she said. "It's not always cut and dried."

It is important to differ with child in a family.

"Parents should approach their children intent on listening and trying to get information without being punitive, judgmental and moralistic," Koplow said. "It should be a time to build on a relationship."

Yet sometimes good communication relationships bring disconcerting information.

"When you have good communication, you will often hear a lot of things you didn't want to hear," Koplow said. "But at least you know. Good communication doesn't mean that they will never do anything that you don't want them to do."

THE LAW AND YOU

BY RICK REED

The purpose of unemployment insurance benefits is to provide support for the person out of work until he can find another job. Over the years, the requirements for receiving unemployment benefits have varied. At one time, a worker who voluntarily quit his job for no reason at all could still receive unemployment in the State of Illinois. The Legislature passed legislation in 1981 to prohibit this from happening in the future.

There are certain requirements which must be met for an unemployed person to receive unemployment insurance benefits. For instance, he must be "available for work" and he must not have been "discharged for misconduct connected with his work." Two cases will demonstrate the problems in interpreting the question of availability for work and the question of discharge for misconduct.

In one case, a claimant for unemployment insurance benefits had been employed as a psychological consultant for three and one-half years prior to her discharge. After she was terminated, she continued to pursue her graduate education as a full-time student.

At the unemployment hearing, the claimant told the claims adjudicator that she was a full-time student, and that she needed a doctorate degree in order to get a better job in her profession. As previously noted, claimants for unemployment benefits must demonstrate that they are "available for work." Availability means the claimant is ready and willing to accept suitable employment. The Appellate Court in this case found that a person who is principally occupied as a student is not available for work but rather is unavailable for employment. Therefore, the plaintiff here was denied unemployment benefits.

In another case, the claimant was discharged by his employer after missing three consecutive days of work. The plaintiff had previously been instructed to request time off from the company foreman. Contrary to company policy, the worker did not check with the foreman but rather took three days off without permission.

The question in this case is whether the unauthorized leave of the plaintiff constituted "misconduct" under the Unemployment Compensation Act. Misconduct has been defined in other cases as a "disregard of the standards of behavior which the employer has a right to expect, and a deliberate violation of the employer's rules." The Court found in this case that the plaintiff had violated the procedures established by the employer, and was therefore not eligible for unemployment benefits.

Dear Ray

As the president and owner of a recently-opened computer training and retail software outlet, attracting customers is my current number one priority. Advertising in our local publications seemed to be one method of letting the citizens of our community know that a new service is available to them.

You will recall that I telephoned you after our first advertisement appeared in your publication to express my satisfaction with its appearance and placement. Since then we have been conducting a survey of each new customer, and at least half of them report learning of our enterprise and location from the newspaper advertisement.

As our budget is rather limited, it is gratifying to know that this investment is worthwhile. Your personal attention and knowledgeable assistance are greatly appreciated, especially since I am a novice in the advertising world.

Thank you very much for your help, consideration, and experienced advice. I look forward to a long-term, professional relationship between our companies.

Sincerely,

Education is America's Future

Fireworks! New Hues; New 'Oohs'

By Craig Martin
Journal Staff Writer

The traditional "rockets' red glare" of the Suburban Journals VP Fair Fireworks will feature a few new twists, a few new hues and a few more oohs at this year's fair.

"There will be new colors, new shapes and new noises this year in what can only be described as an extravaganza of fireworks," said Ken Marshall, chairman of the fireworks committee for this year's fair.

Marshall said advances in fireworks technology have made it possible to have brighter colors and more exciting shapes.

"You will see things this year that you have never seen before, and when the finale lights up the riverfront from the Eads Bridge to the Poplar Street bridge, you will not only be able to see and hear them, I guarantee you'll feel them," he said.

Display shells from all over the world will be used by the two companies producing this year's shows: Rozzi's Famous Fireworks on Saturday and Sunday and Sunset Fireworks on Tuesday. Both Rozzi's and Sunset are VP Fair veterans.

This year will mark the fourth consecutive year of sponsorship of the VP Fair fireworks by the Suburban Journals. Shows will be held Saturday, July 1; Sunday, July 2; and Tuesday, July 4. All shows will begin at 9:30 p.m. The VP Fair will run from Saturday, July 1 through Tuesday July 4, with food, music, entertainment and special exhibits keeping with this year's theme, "Education is America's Future."

Adding to fairgoers' enjoyment of the first two nights of the fireworks display will be a simulcast of accompanying music on Classic 99 (KFUO-FM, 99.1), the official radio station of the Suburban Journals VP Fair Fireworks. Those attending the fireworks display on July 1 and 2 are encouraged to bring their radios and tune them to Classic 99 during the show.

Music that accompanies the display will range from classical to contemporary, and from Mozart to Miami Vice. KFUO will not broadcast the fireworks music on Tuesday, July 4.

But there will be a special event just prior to the fireworks display on July 4th. Eveready batteries and KMOX AM (1120 AM) are sponsoring "Eveready Lights Up St. Louis." As part of the promotion, 50,000 disposable flashlights will be given away on the fairgrounds before the fireworks, and fairgoers are urged to bring flashlights from home in order to light up the sky and the Gateway Arch immediately before the Suburban Journals VP Fair Fireworks.

VP entertainment schedule loaded with St. Louis' best

By Frank Hunter
Staff writer

Nobody knows how to reach a television repairman on weekends. But during the VP Fair riverfront festivities you may find him, along with your doctor, the plumber and herds of other Fourth of July holiday celebrants catching the entertainment on the fairgrounds beneath the Gateway Arch.

VP Fair officials promise that the best entertainers in St. Louis will appear on five super stages. There will be scores of contemporary musicians, singers, dancers, storytellers, magicians, clowns and other costumed characters. In addition, a number of prominent contemporary jazz groups will turn up during the four-day event.

Continuous musical entertainment will be presented during the fair, beginning at noon Saturday and running until 9:30 p.m. daily. On Monday, which has been designated Education Day at the fair, many stages will have activities and performances designed to the education theme. But live musical entertainment will be presented throughout the day on the Michelob Jazz Festival Stage.

The major entertainment this year reflects a contemporary theme that runs the gamut from blues to jazz to pop, along with some excellent Big Band era music," said Ronald Henges, VP Fair general chairman. "We've created a superb mix of entertainers that will appeal to fairgoers of all ages."

Henges said that some of the fair's musical attractions will be showcased during the Michelob VP Fair Jazz Festival, an event featuring more than 100 well-known jazz artists, from noon to 9:30 p.m. daily.

The stages, locations and sponsors are:

•Overlook Stage, located directly below the Gateway Arch on Leona K. Sullivan Boulevard. Schnuck Markets Inc. is the sponsor.

•Michelob VP Fair Jazz Festival Stage, situated in the north triangle area of The Arch grounds. Michelob beer is the corporate sponsor.

•Busch Super Stage, focal point of the south triangle area of The Arch grounds. Anheuser-Busch Cos. Inc., and Busch beer are the sponsors.

•Miller Super Stage, located in the north pond area of The Arch grounds. Sponsored by Miller Brewing Co.

•Monsanto Family Village Stage, centered in the Monsanto Family Village just west of the south pond on The Arch grounds. Sponsored by Monsanto Co.

VP Lost Children's Tent helps reunite families

If your family excursions always seem to end up with little ones getting separated from the pack, Southwestern Bell and Cardinal Glennon Children's Hospital have help for this eventuality at the VP Fair.

Volunteers will be staffing the Lost Children's Tent at Market Street and Memorial Drive to age 10 can stop at any of four locations and receive a balloon and hospital-type identification wristband for their child. The wristband contains space for the child's name, age and the telephone number of a relative or friend to contact in case the child becomes lost.

In addition to the Lost Children's Tent, wristbands and balloons will be issued at Southwestern Bell tents near the entrances to the fair at Washington Street, Chestnut and Walnut and south of the Old Cathedral.

The Lost Children's Tent will open at 10 a.m. Saturday, Monday and Tuesday and at 8 a.m. Sunday. Children will be kept at the tent until called by their parents or until midnight, when they are turned over to police.

Families are advised to designate a location to meet in case they become separated. One of the Southwestern Bell tents is ideal for this purpose.

Proctor and Gamble will provide free diaper changes for babies and toddlers at the Luvs Cleanfort Stations located throughout the fairgrounds.

Entertainers to 'stroll' grounds

There will be more than 20 entertainers, jugglers, mimes, clowns, musicians and dancers strolling the VP Fair grounds.

Among those spending the weekend doing spontaneous things are well-known performers such as Sgt. Pepperoni, a one-man band who plays several instruments at a time while talking with admiring fans who gather to catch his remarkable act.

Another performer who will gambol about, practicing his craft is comedian-juggler Dale Jones, the "one-handed juggler." Jones throws around flower pots, hats, balls, clubs and the like while delivering a comic monologue and keeping various objects flying around in a bold pattern.

The strolling entertainers will be on the fairgrounds from noon to 5:30 p.m. Saturday, and 10:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. and 3 to 5:30 p.m. Sunday and Tuesday.

4,000 volunteers to serve food for charity at VP Fair

More than 4,000 volunteers will grill, bake, pour and serve their way toward raising funds for 39 local charity and service organizations during the VP Fair.

Thirty-nine of the 130 food booths operating at the VP Fair this year have been designated for nonprofit operation. The remainder are owned and operated by independent commercial vendors. The nonprofit groups receive a commission from the VP Fair booth concession sale.

During the first eight years of the fair, charities and service clubs have raised more than $2 million. Last year, 40 organizations received more than $185,000.

One of the biggest tasks the organizations face in preparing for the fair is recruiting the volunteers needed to man the booths for three 5-hour shifts each day. As many as 75 workers are needed per day for the 20-foot booths and up to 250 workers a day for the 40-foot booths.

The organizations this year

VP Parade No. 112 Saturday

The 112th annual VP Parade will begin at 10 a.m. Saturday in downtown St. Louis.

The parade is the prelude to the opening of the VP Fair. The four-day fair will open on the grounds of the Gateway Arch — the Jefferson National Expansion Memorial — at noon Saturday.

This year's parade, built around the theme "School Days," ties into the fair's educational theme for 1989.

The 150-unit spectacle will take about 75 minutes to pass any given point along the parade route. The parade will follow the same route as last year — starting at Fourteenth and Olive streets, proceeding east on Olive to Tucker Boulevard, then north to Tucker to Washington Avenue, east on Washington to Fourth Street, south on Fourth Street to Market, and then west to Market to Tucker.

Disneyland's Donald Duck and Poofy will be the honorary parade marshals. These and other Disney characters will play a role in this year's fair.

The parade will feature 19 marching bands, 23 floats, equestrian units, beauty queens, clowns, antique cars and the world-famous Clydesdales and a number of.

"We think we've put together a colorful, enjoyable variety of attractions that will offer something for every member of the family and will make this year's parade one to remember," said parade chairman Howard Elliott.

The Freedom Festival marching band contest, sponsored by KMOX-AM (1120), Famous-Barr and Schnucks, will attract 13 bands from Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, Minnesota and Iowa with more than 1,500 musicians competing for trophies and cash prizes.

In addition, there will be the VP Fair Honors Band of 161 outstanding high school musicians from the St. Louis area, Colonial Pipe and Drum Corps and military bands.

The 20 floats will depict memories of school days for children of all ages. In addition, the veiled prophet and his 1989 queen of love and beauty, Elizabeth Elliott, will appear in the parade along with his court.

There will be a special viewing area for the disabled in front of the General American Life

Education Day called 'very exciting event'

By Craig A. Martin
Staff writer

The school bells will ring at 10 a.m. Monday on the grounds of the VP Fair to signal the beginning of Education Day, which is being billed by fair officials as the "world's largest classroom."

A full day of special events is scheduled for the South Triangle stage, which is southeast of the south pond, near the Poplar Street Bridge. Other special events are scheduled for the Overlook Stage, on the bank of the Mississippi River.

More than 200 people from local organizations will fill the South Triangle stage with fun and educational skits to inform the public of many local community services.

"This is a very exciting event," said Les Landes, publicity director for the VP Fair. "It will combine the fun of the VP Fair with a very important message of how important education is for our future."

In fact, the theme of the entire VP Fair this year is "Education is America's Future."

"We don't want people to think that Monday won't be fun because it will. But if you're not careful, you just may learn something in the process."

Landes said.

The Mathews-Dickey Boys Club will coordinate the events for the day with help from other service agencies and corporate sponsors like Emerson Electric, Monsanto Co. and Pet Inc.

The day will begin with the ringing of school bells and opening ceremonies at 10 a.m.

The schedule for the rest of the day is as follows:

•10:30 a.m., South Triangle, Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts flag ceremony.

•11 a.m., South Triangle, Monsanto YMCA "Man in the Mirror" program, and the American Red Cross Emergency Training "Wipe Out" program.

•11:30 a.m., South Triangle,

City of St. Louis Police Department "Herman the Magic Dragon" and the City of St. Louis Fire Department "Don't Play with Fire."

•Noon, South Triangle, Mundy Theatre Project Company "A Tribute to Fairy Tales."

•1 p.m., South Triangle, American Red Cross/Union Electric/City of St. Louis Fire Department "Captain Disaster to the Rescue."

•1:30 p.m., South Triangle, Mathews Dickey Boys Club and the U.S. Census Bureau "Ya Gotta Do It." Overlook Stage, Harris-Stowe State College "Celebrate Education" program gives a history of education, focusing on St. Louis.

•2 p.m., South Triangle, Annie Malone Children's Home "Teens Take Charge of Your Life." Overlook Stage, address by Gilbert M. Segasenor, president and chairman of the board of the National Geographic Society. He will teach geography.

•2:30 p.m., South Triangle, Mathews-Dickey Boys Club "A Stamp For Literacy."

•3 p.m., South Triangle, St. Louis Job Corps Center Choir "The Future is Now."

•4:30 p.m., Overlook Stage, Emerson Electric honors 150 St. Louis area teachers with "Excellence in Teaching Awards."

•5:30 p.m., Overlook Stage, repeat of Harris-Stowe State College "Celebrate Education."

Back in Business

GRANITE CITY — Wednesday, the Granite City Works of American Steel Foundries was fully operational for the first time since it closed in November 1982.

"We believe this is the only time in history a foundry that has been shut down for this long has been brought back to life," said Norm Berg, president of American Steel Foundries. "Some people thought we had left for good, but I never, never doubted we would be back."

From molten steel to the finished and painted product, banded for shipment, every department was back at work. To celebrate, each of the more than 250 employees wore a T-shirt saying: "We're Back in Business."

American Steel makes the side frames and bolsters (wheel suspension and assembly) for railroad cars. The foundry closed when the bottom fell out of the market for new railroad cars. The foundry was mothballed, rather than abandoned, because, Granite City Works Manager Bill Donovan said, "We always knew we would be back."

Donovan said that although the foundry is fully operational, it is not completely up to speed. He compared the foundry to an athlete who had been on the disabled list for a long time.

"When he comes in for a major game, or the big game, he knows what he has to do, but the body doesn't react the way it used to."

"We are fortunate to have a tremendous number of qualified employees back on the job, but they're a little rusty."

More employees are being brought back all the time, Donovan said, although only one shift is working right now. At its peak, the Granite City foundry was the largest manufacturer of side frames and bolsters in the free world.

That top position is one Donovan said the foundry will hold again and he said it is on its way.

"When you go out to the shop, you will hear a lot of noise," he said. "But it is not just any noise; it is music to the ears of our employees."

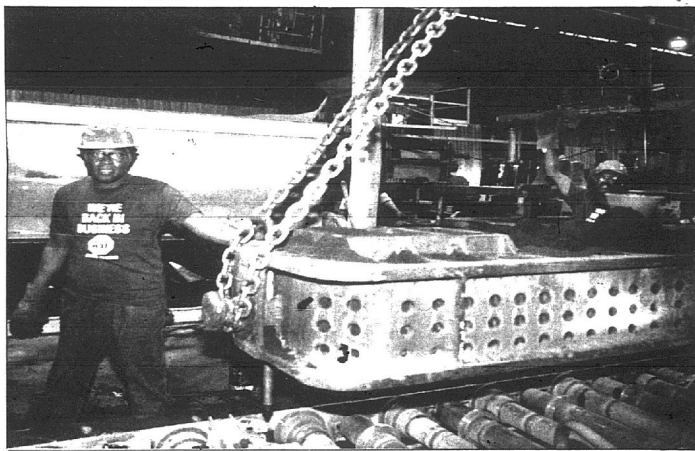

A CUTTING TORCH is used on a side frame in the finishing department.

"WE'RE BACK IN BUSINESS" is proclaimed on a T-shirt worn by an employee guiding a mold being moved.

Boom times and growing pains unavoidably linked

On June 1 this column reported that Liza Minnelli was "wowing audiences with desert songs." The topic was show-business aspects of Las Vegas.

Today, let's continue our Las Vegas thoughts with a report on its tremendous economic and population growth. The Nevada gambling mecca is listed as having 183,000 residents but that is surely outdated; it has been adding several thousand a month, making it the fastest-growing city in the United States.

Called "a neon memorial to unseined affluence," the 24-hour-a-day town attracts 12 million visitors annually, exceeding the size of the permanent population at any given time.

PESSIMISM DEVELOPED in Las Vegas when crowds began decreasing there and attention began focusing on a new gambling city, Atlantic City in New Jersey.

Atlantic City has prospered but Las Vegas is now out of the doldrums and booming spectacularly.

The city contains the biggest resort hotel in the world, the Las Vegas Hilton, and is getting several new hotels each year.

READY TO OPEN in a few months is the Mirage, built by Steve Wynn, former-owner of the Golden Nugget. Its attractions will include a simulated volcano that erupts every few seconds, and an aquarium complete with a shark.

The Flamingo Hilton, itself in the midst of a gigantic expansion, is building the Excalibur a few blocks away. But citizen protests are blocking the proposed construction of a Bighorn Hotel/Casino.

Old casinos, of course, don't necessarily last forever. The Mint, visible on numerous photo postcards of Las Vegas, no longer exists; its demise enabled the neighboring Binion's Horseshoe Club to expand.

AS GRANITE CITY once discovered, soaring growth inevitably creates growing pains. The pains are apparent these days in Las Vegas, where a sewer project causes many street lanes to be blocked off each night.

Daytime auto traffic is badly congested, particularly at Flamingo Road and Las Vegas Boulevard.

That busy intersection features, at the four corners: Dunes/Oasis; Bally's Resort Hotel; Barbary Coast/Flamingo Hilton; and Caesars Palace/Mirage.

HOOVER DAM, contrary to common belief, provides only a small fraction of the electric power that keeps Las Vegas ablaze, but it figures prominently in the plans of many Las Vegas visitors because it is only about 30 miles away.

The 1931-35 project created Lake Mead, which has a shoreline of 822 miles. Besides of the dam include flood protection and provision of a stable, year-around water supply.

The 726-foot-tall structure is on the Colorado River between Nevada and Arizona. In 1955, the American Society of Civil Engineers chose the dam as one of the nation's seven modern civil engineering wonders.

Creating chasms like the Grand Canyon, the Colorado River has existed for millions of years, extending 1,400 miles from Colorado's Rocky Mountains to the Gulf of California.

CONSTRUCTION now in progress at the dam will, by 1992, increase its electric output by 35 percent.

Herbert Hoover, 1929-32 U.S. president, was secretary of Commerce in 1922 when he presided over negotiations that led to the Colorado River Compact. That agreement governs distribution of water to seven states, including thirsty areas of Nevada, Arizona and California.

Whether there will be sufficient water in the future for areas like Las Vegas is uncertain.

The dam initially was named for Hoover but later was called Boulder Dam, including the Boulder City, which has been dedicated by Pres. Franklin Roosevelt. At Pres. Harry Truman's instigation, Congress restored the original name in 1947.

WATER AND ELECTRICITY are not the only supply concerns of an isolated desert metropolis. A pipeline that provides 90 percent of the gasoline to the Las Vegas Valley exploded May 25 at San Bernardino, Calif., killing three persons, destroying a neighborhood and cutting off the flow of fuel. Trucks are now carrying the gasoline.

With 4,800 people moving into Las Vegas in a typical month, with 11,487 hotel rooms now under construction and with 34,664 additional hotel rooms proposed, the rapid growth has attracted construction workers from all over the nation.

Unemployment is 2½ percent. INTENSE PRESSURE is being felt by such utilities as Nevada Power Co., Las Vegas Valley Water District, Southwest Gas Co., Central Telephone Co. and Silver State Disposal Co.

Home sales exceed 500 each month. In the first third of 1989, residential and commercial building permits totaled 4,363. Fifteen new schools are being built over a four-year period.

Street crime became a problem several years ago but has been reduced, thanks to a major increase in manpower for the police department.

IT IS RARE to encounter any congestion or delay at McCarran International Airport, which has been expanded greatly.

Automated trains carry passengers from the main terminal to some of the gates.

Airlines serving the city are Delta, Northwest, SkyWest, USAir, America West, Continental, Hawaiian Air, TWA, Air America, Air Canada, American, Braniff, Key, Midway, Odyssey Air, Nation Air, Orion Air, Southwest, Ward Air, Worldways Canada and United.

TAXES GENERALLY are low there, but the precise level that should prevail is always the subject of heated debate by legislators at the Nevada capital, Carson City. In late May, the debate centered on a proposed 15-cent increase in the cigarette tax.

In addition, hearings were conducted on whether to impose a gross receipts tax on Nevada businesses.

Officials from 14 Las Vegas hotels met May 25 to discuss the status of contract talks with the Culinary and Bartender unions. Current agreements were about to expire for 28,000 union members at 33 resort hotels.

AIDED BY ITS LOW PAY for hotel and casino workers, Las Vegas is known as an inexpensive place to visit. Air fares are low and combination packages usually enable people to pay little for their lodging.

Visitors are so sought-after that, if you can show airline tickets, the Dunes Hotel will provide you a free buffet, free slot machine tournament, free color photo and free champagne.

At any casino, free cocktails are inescapable, and dining is offered at surprisingly low prices, although there are exceptions.

"FUN BOOKS" provide free bingo, free keno tickets, free popcorn, free gaming instruction, free souvenirs, free slot tokens and other freebies. Several hotels specialize in free shrimp.

The theory is that, if you can be lured into the building, nature will take its course and you will gamble.

Many persons win at the casinos, but obviously the huge buildings all over town were paid for by somebody — customers who lost. Even in Las Vegas, money doesn't grow on palm trees.

Drugs and kids: what we face

With drug abuse, our kids are faced with a disease more deadly than all the plagues that have come before us. It is a problem that can be decreased in severity. We will always have drug abuse, but we can slash the numbers.

As the four-part Journal series that concluded today has shown, typical kids are becoming swept up in the crises. They are using drugs; they are selling drugs. Some of them scoff at "Just Say No" campaigns; some of them are crying for attention and not getting it. Worse, some are getting attention from peers who care less about their well-being than they care about "having fun."

Treatment centers are springing up all around us, and the numbers utilizing them astounds even the most cynical. (A list of many of these centers can be found on Page 6A of today's paper.) Parents who have done their damndest to raise their children in the correct environment, using only the most positive influences, are seeing them fall to the demon of drug despair. Parents are part of the cure, but they also are part of the problem. Every tiny thing and word they use in any form, they are passing along a message that drugs are A-O-K.

As with most businesses, the law of supply and demand is everything to the world of the drug dealer. Cut out the demand and there will be no need for supply. But the big question: How do you cut down on demand? Education and a complete crackdown on drug dealing seem the answer.

First, educate children. Tell young people what the drug problem is all about. Show them. Let them see how drug use can start out as simple fun and turn into — as baseball player Keith Hernandez once termed it — "the devil on earth."

Young people will say, "It's just a can of beer" or "It's just a little grass." However, every addict will tell you that he or she started with "just a little" prior to falling victim by a lot.

Second, a swift crackdown on drug dealing should be coupled with the escalation of penalties to make even the least transaction regrettable. Let young people know the risks of dealing to let them know what's involved.

Schools are doing an increasingly fine job of educating young people on the deleterious effects of drugs, but they are falling far short of monitoring their hallways and school yards, where much of the trade takes place. Police agencies also are going to have to devote more time to cleaning the community of drug trade. When virtually every recreational outlet in town doubles as a scene of drug dealing, something is wrong.

As a footnote, please don't say it can't happen to you. In preparation for the series on drug use, about a dozen Journal reporters and editors gathered around a large table. One by one nearly every person in the room related some tale of drug abuse, either personally or within their family. It can happen.

Let's express positive patriotism

Defense of the United States flag is a hot topic of debate, with July 4 approaching and the Supreme Court deciding to allow flag desecration.

Supporters of the ruling say the flag represents freedom, including the freedom to show disrespect to it. Most feel that almost any freedom has limits and there is no reason for this nation to tolerate those who seek its violent overthrow; a democracy has a right to defend itself and its hallowed symbols. They cite court precedent to define flag burnings as provocative "fighting words," not free discussion.

But our Independence Day thoughts also dwell on how best to exert our patriotic cherishes. For example, how can this country be defended in its role as a world leader and a symbol of liberty?

A five-night Public Broadcasting System series this week says we are losing out to the Japanese and others in a growing number of fields because they concentrate more on long-term product investment and development. Many U.S. firms instead try to maximize their profits in the next quarter or year — to stave off being fired or acquired — and wind up sacrificing the ultimate competitiveness of their companies and their nation.

U.S. industry and bureaucrats remain hostile adversaries at a time when foreign governments are working in close cooperation with private firms. Within companies, research and development units and production heads irritate each other, "ping pong" potential innovations back and forth while foreign firms patiently fine-tune new ideas and methods.

Labor and management often find themselves at cross-purposes while the staffs of far-away firms use teamwork to achieve prosperity for all — quality, productivity and efficiency gains enable them to capture growing shares of world markets.

In other lands, student achievement is emphasized and extensive on-the-job training also pays dividends. In the United States, too often, such training is a remedial process for basic skills, including reading, that were not learned in school. Millions of students drop out, and a lot of those who do graduate were insufficiently challenged and are not adequately educated.

The PBS study concludes that America is slipping behind. It has one of the worst infant mortality rates among the major countries. Our income/living standards level, compared to other leading nations, is on a steep slide. And government leaders still pretend we can overcompensate our federal resources without penalty.

Nevertheless, patriotism, pride and a degree of confidence are justified; we have much to be proud of in this land of opportunity and fair play. Change and improvement are possible.

Let's express our love of country by focusing on making the nation better. Let's perpetuate freedom by remaining progressive and strong, this year and in the years and centuries ahead.

Transit district gets to help

To the editor:

Madison County Transit is very pleased to be sponsoring the free shuttle service in downtown St. Louis this year during the 1989 VP Fair on July 1, 2 and 4.

The VP Fair is a very important regional event for the greater St. Louis metropolitan area. The Fair not only brings together people from both sides of the river, but also draws national attention to our area.

The past few years, the free downtown VP Fair shuttle has played a big part in providing easy access to the Fair for everybody whether you are a Missouri, Illinois or out-of-state fair-goer vacationing in St. Louis.

When we heard about the difficulty the VP Fair Committee was having in finding a sponsor to defray the cost of the shuttle, we didn't hesitate to step forward with an offer to fund the service.

Madison County Transit is in the business of serving the transportation needs of our people. We have been pleased to work with the VP Fair Committee, the City of St. Louis and Bi-State to do just that in providing special express bus service for our people to get to the VP Fair.

Over the years, we have worked to improve access to the Fair. The cooperation of the Committee, former Mayor John Foelker and the City of St. Louis greatly improved this service a couple of years ago by permitting the routing of buses along Memorial Drive for the convenience of our bus-riding fairgoers.

It is in this spirit of cooperation that we are pleased to offer our assistance to making the 1989 VP Fair a success by sponsoring the free downtown VP Fair Shuttle.

Neighbors had a right to object

To the editor:

In response to your editorial "Screaming gets nothing done," I don't feel that anyone was unreasonably boisterous, loud or profane (at the Zoning Board of Appeals meeting June 14). Irritated, yes, and rightfully so.

It was not mere coincidence that the agenda carried four requests for identical variances of extended footage of neighboring property and in each of three cases a variance of minor footage allowance was granted and approved.

This is what I call setting up the request for the big one, "Mr. Quick-Trip."

Despite 258 signatures on petitions and verbal protests — and the fact that building codes and state laws would be violated — it took the chairperson Dewey Melton less than three minutes to grant and recommend approval to the board of aldermen that a 19-foot variance be allowed, rather than three feet as in the other cases.

As a property owner, would anyone let his neighbor butt up against his property when building codes required him to be at least 19 feet away? This is what we as taxpayers and voters are apparently being forced to do.

With enough leverage you can move the world and with enough pressure here it seems you can do the same thing.

For passage of home owner plan

To the editor:

The young people of Illinois need your help.

That help will come if you give them your support to get House Bill 1000 through the Illinois Senate, where it arrived after passing the House.

House Bill 1000 creates HOME (Home Ownership Made Easy), an investment program which will make it easier for first-time home buyers to save for down payments for their homes.

Speaker Michael Madigan and I introduced this important measure because young people are being priced out of the home market. For example, the number of first-time home buyers in Illinois has dropped more than 10 percent in the last 10 years.

What the program does is permit participants to stage their home accounts with a minimum of only $250. The program provides for them to buy low-denomination bonds in a $50 million statewide program conducted by my office and the Illinois Housing Development Authority to enable them to save enough for their down payments.

This is a good program designed to make it possible for young men and women, married or unmarried, to save and plan for the future. It will also afford to the participants a priority position in the state's low-interest mortgage programs.

The HOME Program was not intended to be in competition with the private sector. It has a specific goal. HOME can be the only realistic opportunity for many of our young married people to own their own homes.

We anticipate strong opposition to House Bill 1000 from special interest groups. We urge you to ask Illinois state senators to support House Bill 1000. Our young people are our hope for the future and they deserve a home.

'Throwaway' demeaning

We live in a throwaway society, but there are times the term "throwaway" really bugs me.

Like the way many people refer to our two free newspapers, the Wednesday and Sunday editions of the Press-Record/Journal. Readers will ask which paper an item will appear in — "the Press-Record or one of the throwaways?" Most of the callers are not being derogatory; that's just the phrase that comes to their minds.

The phrase of choice should be "free distribution."

Of course, the paper is a throwaway, in the same way that all papers are throwaways — you don't keep them forever. How many past editions of the Post-Dispatch do you have sitting around your house, for crying out loud?

The Journal might be free but it's no less valuable. In fact, because it's a heavily advertiser-supported paper, the Wednesday edition is generally bigger than the Thursday. We beef up Thursday with the things that guarantee readership — weddings, business news, editorials. We're not stupid; we've got a product to sell.

But as news breaks we get it in the next possible paper. Readers who choose not to read a paper because it's free, or who choose not to subscribe on Thursday, are missing the continuity provided by a tri-weekly.

"Throwaway" is a demeaning term. In free papers might be tossed on the lawn, but there is a lot of care given to the process that gets them there.

Some people have a hard time adjusting to the "something for nothing" concept. Despite many years of presence in the metropolitan area, some people don't read any of the Journals, strictly because most of them are free.

People are funny. They complain all the time about the Press-Record, but they're very complimentary about the Press-Record/Journal. It must be that they figure as long as they're going to pay, they're going to pay to get something. It's harder to complain about something that doesn't cost a cent.

News editor Mike Myers often relates a funny story of the woman who called to complain about an item in the Press-Record. She ended her conversation by stating flatly: "The Journal would never do that!"

What do you think about the Supreme Court's flag ruling?

Last week the U.S. Supreme Court upheld a person's right to burn the U.S. flag, resulting in President George Bush calling for a Constitutional amendment that would ban the desecration of the flag. What do you think about the high court's ruling and the president's reaction?

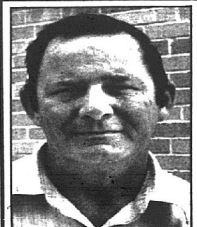

Mary Hoffman, 32,
Belleville

"I don't agree with it. I think President Bush is doing the right thing. I would definitely vote for a Constitutional amendment and I think penalties should be very stiff."

Harold Lassen, 54,

"I don't believe in burning the flag myself. I guess I'm just patriotic. I don't agree with the Supreme Court."

Gary Hoffman, 44,
Granite City

"I think there should be a penalty for desecrating the flag. There should be a fine and maybe even a jail sentence in some instances. You can't burn rubbish in a trash barrel, but you can burn the flag."

S.M. Wilson to build Sam's

GRANITE CITY — S.M. Wilson & Co., a general contractor with offices in Granite City and St. Louis, has begun construction of a $2.5 million Sam's Wholesale Club in St. Charles, Mo.

The facility will be completed in November, according to Gary Range, S.M. Wilson project manager.

Sam's Wholesale Club is a variety store that offers wholesale prices to qualified members including teachers, government employees, members of the American Association of Retirees Persons and qualifying businesses.

The 132,000 square-foot warehouse is located on a 13.5-acre site on the Interstate 70 south service road in Regency Plaza.

S.M. Wilson & Co., founded in 1921, is a diversified contracting company, performing construction in the commercial, industrial, retail, multifamily, sewer, wastewater treatment and other markets. Its Granite City office is located at 1616 Cleveland Blvd.

S&L aggregate income rises

SPRINGFIELD — The aggregate net income of Illinois savings and loan association rose sharply during the first quarter of 1989, the Illinois League of Savings Institutions reported recently.

According to J. Dennis Montgomery, league president, Illinois 244 thrifts earned $82 million in the first quarter, nearly six times the amount recorded in the first quarter of 1988.

"The state's first quarter profit reflects the strength and health of businesses in Illinois and the positive impact of last year's troubled thrift resolution program," Montgomery said.

With assets of $67 billion, Illinois is the nation's fourth largest savings institution state.

Illinois' first-quarter profits were in sharp contrast to the loss reported by the industry elsewhere. Nationwide, savings and loan associations lost $3.4 billion in the first quarter of 1989, according to the Federal Home Loan Bank Board. The board emphasized, however, that Texas thrifts accounted for much of the industry's net loss.

Montgomery attributed Illinois' strong showing to good management and sound loan underwriting.

"Nearly three-fourths of the state's assets are invested in mortgage and mortgage-related securities — two of the safest investments a financial institution can make," he said.

Boeker again earns honor

R.W. Boeker Co. Inc., based in Hamel, has announced receipt of a certificate of commendation for safety excellence by the Associated General Contractors of America. This is the second year in a row that Boeker has won the prestigious award.

The award, presented annually by the AGC, goes to contractors that demonstrate significant accomplishments in the prevention of construction site injuries and illnesses. Scott Boeker, marketing director, said the company experienced a zero incidence rate during a period of 10,000 to 50,000 man-hours worked.

Boeker is a general contractor specializing in design/build, construction management, and O&M pre-engineered buildings in the commercial and institutional field and is a member of the Southern Illinois Builders Association, a chapter of the AGC, said.

IRS tax preparer exam set

The application deadline for the Internal Revenue Service Special Enrollment Examination is July 31.

This annual IRS two-day examination is for tax preparers who wish to qualify to represent their clients before the IRS on tax return examinations and similar tax matters. This year, the IRS Special Enrollment Examination is scheduled for Sept. 28 and 29.

One can obtain a Special Enrollment Examination Application Packet from their local IRS Office or by calling (217) 492-4288. This packet contains the application form, information on the requirements for enrollment, and details about the examination.

The examination application fee is $50 for those taking all four parts of the exam and $40 for those who took portions of the examination last year. Checks or money orders must be payable to the Internal Revenue Service.

Solid earnings by thrifts

Despite the adversity surrounding the savings and loan business, the typical Illinois savings institution continues to record solid earnings, according to a recent survey of the state's thrifts.

According to J. Dennis Montgomery, president of the Illinois League of Savings Institutions, the survey revealed that the median annualized return on assets (ROA) of Illinois thrifts was 0.64 percent in February 1989 and 0.34 percent in January (latest data available).

Montgomery explained that return on assets is a closely watched measure of profitability. It measures relative earning power and provides insight into the financial performance of an organization. Monthly figures are calculated by dividing annualized monthly net income by average assets.

Illinois' February ROA ratio exceeded the national median figure of 0.57 percent, while the state's January figure was nearly identical to the nationwide January ratio of 0.35 percent. Last year Illinois' January and February median ROA ratios were 0.38 percent, respectively.

The median is the middle value in a distribution, above and below which lie an equal number of values.

"Despite deregulation and the accompanying ability to diversify into other types of lending, Illinois thrifts have continued to concentrate on what they know best — residential lending," said Montgomery. He stressed that Illinois thrifts originate nearly half of all the 1-4 family mortgage loans in the state, nearly double the amount lent by the business' nearest competitor.

The survey was conducted by the U.S. League of Savings Institutions.

IP declines quarter dividends

The board of directors of Illinois Power has reaffirmed its decision of April 28 not to declare a quarterly dividend on the company's common stock.

The board's action marks the first time since 1947 that Illinois Power has not declared a dividend on the company's common stock — an action that affects more than 95,000 stockholders.

Board members cited the March 30 rate order of the Illinois Commerce Commission and its impact on the company's financial condition as the focus of the decision.

The board did, however, declare regular quarterly preferred stock dividends ranging from 51 cents to $2 on cumulative preferred stock.

All dividends declared are payable Aug. 1, 1989, to shareholders of record on July 10.

GRANITE CITY — "Absolutely different from anything else in the area" is how the manager of Jox Sports Corral describes the new nightclub, located behind the McDonald's Restaurant, Johnson Road off Nameoki Road.

The nightclub is owned by Jan Gitcho, who declined to be interviewed.

Manager Gary Barron said Jox — formerly Cadillac Bob's, formerly Geo's Restaurant, formerly the Corral — will combine live music, vintage video games, board games, sports reading material and deli-style food to appeal to customers of all ages.

"We're not targeting one particular group," Barron said. "We will try to play to all age groups."

He said customers won't have to worry about the rowdiness and occasional fights that plagued the nightclub when it was Cadillac Bob's.

Nor will neighbors have to worry about noise. Through a weird circumstance, when the place was Cadillac Bob's, music from the bandstand traveled through a sewer pipe into nearby houses, resulting in musical toilets, Barron said. He has remedied that problem by moving the bandstand and having the place acoustically insulated.

Barron said on Monday he hopes to open for the first time on this Saturday. Workers were still putting finishing touches on the 1,900 square-foot club.

He said the club will feature a unique jukebox that looks like the rear end of a '57 Thunderbird and for completion of the big sports figure murals that will adorn the outside of the establishment.

Inside, the walls are high-lighted, with diagonal color stripes and reflective tape.

McDonnell Douglas workers would be hurt by fighter cut

By Liz Stanley
Staff writer

WASHINGTON — About 7,500 McDonnell Douglas employees who could be laid off because of cuts in the Air Force F-15E fighter program would be helped in other jobs under a bill discussed by a house subcommittee recently.

The bill would give a federal aid package to help military base employees, defense contractors and engineers hit hard by military cutbacks and base closures, said bill sponsor Rep. Ted Weiss, D-N.Y., who has been boosting the measure since 1977.

The prospect of further Pentagon reductions and more resulting economic dislocation piqued the interest of the House Banking Committee's Economic Stabilization Subcommittee in legislation to assist transition from military to civilian employment, said subcommittee chairwoman Mary Rose Oaker, D-Ohio.

Oaker hopes to attach the bill as Title II of the Department of Defense (DPA) reauthorization in September.

The new bill merges three approaches to economic adjustment advocated in former federal proposals — converting defense facilities, diversifying defense dependent communities by bringing other industries into the area, and providing transitional assistance to the affected workers.

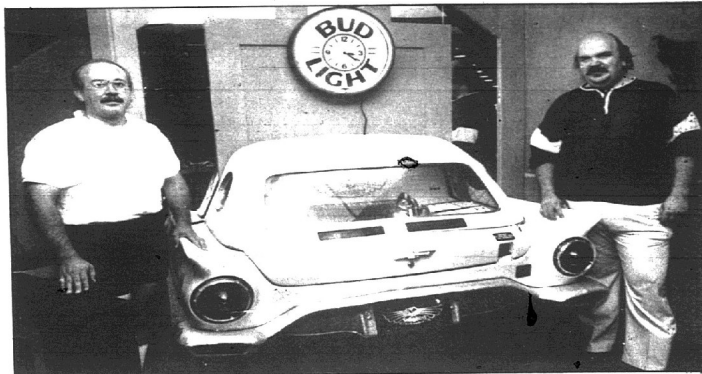

Funding for the economic adjustments would come from a 10 percent fee on projected Defense Department savings, said Rep. Nick Mavroules, D-Mass.

"For every $10 million we lose in defense spending, put $1 million in spending to help these layoffs," he said.

The McDonnell Douglas layoffs are only a fraction of the 45,000 total positions that are threatened following recent reductions in military spending, said Dr. Seymour Melman, chairman of the National Commission on Economic Conversion and Disarmament.

Economic conversion, the process of changing labor forces, factories, laboratories and bases from military to civilian uses, should prevent economic dislocation caused by the unavoidable cuts in military spending expected to continue over the next few years, said Melman.

The bill's effect on McDonnell Douglas is unknown, but the firm refuses to confirm that the 7,500 people involved with the terminated F-15E program will all lose their jobs, said corporate

Spots paraphernalia from St. Louis pro teams will be featured, and Barron hopes customers will donate photos of old Granite City teams.

The club will have live music on Wednesdays, Fridays and Saturdays.

During lunch (11 a.m. to 2 p.m.) Monday through Friday, customers will be able to choose from a limited menu featuring such sandwiches as Italian beef on sourdough buns, Reuben sandwiches, fish and meatball sandwiches. The kitchen, however, will not open for several weeks, Barron said.

During happy hour (4 to 7 p.m.) Monday through Friday there will be free hors d'oeuvres, and drink prices will be reduced 40 percent. Barron hasn't determined exactly what the base price of drinks will be, but he pledged to "be cheaper than anybody else in town" for the first 30 to 45 days of operation.

The jukebox will feature songs from the '50s, '60s and '70s. Barron said live music will consist of bands such as Cornerstone, Laser and the Jim & Dave Show.

During band breaks Barron himself will conduct fun gimmicks such as egg races. "We may even have comedians," he said.

There's a 60-foot-long wet bar and a 300-square-foot dance floor. Patrons will be able to check out sports magazines and board games to play in a special lounge area equipped with couches and easy chairs, or play tabletop video games such as "Pong."

He also plans to open a beer garden outside, hold pig roasts and possibly trout-tank fishing tournaments.

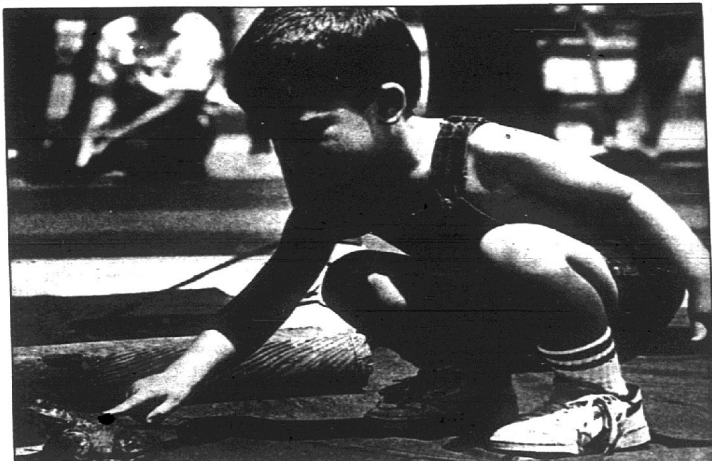

Barron summed up: "I want customers to have a good time and get their money's worth, without going home drunk. This will be a safe place to go."

Each Hucks Store donated 2 cents out of every gallon of gas sold that weekend and hosted car washes and other in-store fund-raising events. Paint brushes splash, frogs jump at Hannibal's Tom Sawyer Days

By Pam Seibert
Correspondent

Hannibal, Mo., claims Mark Twain, though he lived there only 13 years, and Tom Sawyer, ever, though Twain didn't write the books in Hannibal that feature Sawyer. But Hannibal and the Mississippi River provided the background for the books, and besides, it's a great excuse for a festival. The town has held a Tom Sawyer festival annually since 1906.

This year's National Tom Sawyer Days start June 30 with a pet show and finish July 4 with a fireworks display on the riverfront.

Dorothy Minear, director of Hannibal's Visitors and Convention Bureau, said the five-day festival will provide fun in much the way Tom himself would have enjoyed it.

There will be fence-painting contests—who doesn't know about Tom and his antics snaring local boys to do his white-washing? There also will be "Tom and Becky" competitions, riverboat races, even frog-jumping contests. And there will be events Tom probably never dreamed of, such as squishy rounds of mud volleyball.

Activities are concentrated in the historic district of town, the area around Hill Street and North Main.

This is the section of town near the riverfront where the young Samuel Clemens (for whom Mark Twain later became the nom de plume) spent his growing-up years. Born in 1835, little Sam Clemens moved to Hannibal at age 4 with his family.

The Clemens family home, and the adjoining Mark Twain Museum, which was built by the Works Progress Administration, opened for visitors in 1937.

Also to be seen in the historic district are the law office of Judge John Clemens (Sam's father) and the visitors center.

Across the steep cobble street from the Clemens home is the home of Becky Thatcher (her real name was Laura Hawkins). All of the frame or stone buildings enjoy a commanding view of the Mississippi River.

The festival opens at 1 p.m. June 30 in Central Park (near the river) with a pet show. Any kind of animal is welcome.

Other events that will begin the first day and run throughout the festival are bingo at Nipper

Park and mud volleyball games at Hill and Front streets. It is necessary to preregister for mud volleyball; call Joe Riefesdal at (314) 221-3524.

The Mark Twain riverboat, a gleaming new replica of the old paddle-wheel steamboats that once plied the Mississippi in great numbers, will make three one-hour cruises each day of the festival. The boat will depart at 11 a.m. and 1:30 and 4 p.m. Two-hour dinner cruises will begin each evening at 7 p.m.

On July 1 a frog-jumping contest will begin at 9:30 a.m. in Nipper Park. If you would like to participate but don't have a frog, local Boy Scouts will rent you one.

At 9:15 p.m. July 4, visitors can gather at the riverfront for the fireworks display, which will wrap up the festival.

For a complete schedule of events, call the Visitors and Convention Bureau at (314) 221-2477. The festival begins at 1 p.m. June 30. Hours are 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. July 1 through 4. There is no admission charge.

'Ghostbusters II' lukewarm in a summer of hot sequels

By Frank Hunter
Staff writer

The 1984 "Ghostbusters" () reportedly grossed $220 million. It is touted as the biggest box-office take for a comedy in the history of motion pictures and as good a reason as any to produce a sequel.

Director Ivan Reitman and writers Dan Aykroyd and Harold Ramis have produced a silly script in which an evil demon, hiding behind an oil painting in the Metropolitan Museum of Art, is unleashed.

The thing, which looks like Vlad the Impaler, speaks in hoarse moans and groans and thunderclaps while struggling to implant its satanic self in the body of a toddler snatched from a hysterical Sigourney Weaver.

But, like all the hysterical New Yorkers tilting with flying spirits and some supernatural pink slime bubbling up from the sewers, Weaver is powerless until the Ghostbusters regroup.

The under-12 set will love all this despite the repetitious story line — my 8-year-old grandson pronounced "Ghostbusters II" the best movie he's ever seen. But adults may feel somewhat downcast at having walked this road before.

That's not to say this film is not enlivened by the crazy quips and antics of scientist-researchers Bill Murray, Dan Aykroyd, Ernie Hudson and Harold Ramis. But the first 20 minutes or so provide most of the laughs.

There is a tip of the hat to the Statue of Liberty as a stalwart freedom fighter, plus a couple of droll moments with Rick Moranis and Annie Potts as a naive attorney and the secretary who gives him more business than he can handle.

Bowen blanks Troy 10-0

By Dave Whaley
Executive sports editor

GRANITE CITY — Maybe they should rename the Miners. Call them the Granite City Vampires. They struggle by day, but they're almost unbeatable by night.

The Troy Warriors were the latest victims of the Miners in Metro East Night League action Wednesday. Mark Bowen (2-2) pitched a three-hit shutout as the Miners put a 10-0 bite on the Warriors to raise their Night League record to 6-2. That moves them to within a half game of league-leading Sauget (6-1).

"That's more like it," said player/coach Daren DePew, who had three hits to pace an 11-hit attack against Troy (8-1). "We couldn't come in here thinking we had a win just by showing up. Troy has improved tremendously since the last time we played them (a 14-2 win on May 24)."

But the Warriors never had a chance against Bowen, who started a 1-6-3 double play to end the game in the seventh inning. Night League has a 10-run rule.

starting with the seventh inning. "I still didn't throw real hard tonight," Bowen said. "I've been sick the last couple of days and I wasn't real strong."

But he was sharp enough and was supported by plenty of offense.

"Mark just had to go out there and throw strikes," DePew said. "I told him that before the game and he did well."

Bowen was throwing to Jamie Hogan, who donned the catcher's gear to give DePew a break. DePew played third base while Bob Sirtak moved to short and played well. Tom Greco made a couple of nice plays at second and blasted his tenth homer of the year, a two-run blast just inside the foul pole in the fourth.

And Rich Wilson, who owns the third highest batting average in Granite City High School history (.465 in 1987), joined the team and played left field.

"Richie's going to help us," DePew said. "He can go get the ball and he has a good arm. He also told me he can play on the infield if we need him. And he's going to hit. He had some good hacks tonight."

Wilson was 0 for 3, but drew a walk and scored the tenth run in the sixth on Sirtak's sacrifice fly.

"I didn't really do anything drastic tonight," DePew said of the new look. "Everybody was playing a position they knew how to play. The first position I ever played was third base. And Jamie can play anywhere you want him to. I enjoy catching. It's hard to get me out from behind the plate. But we need a backup catcher if something happens to me and Jamie can obviously handle it."

"I'd like to do it again," Hogan said. "But I didn't really do anything tonight. I wanted to get a chance to throw somebody out or something."

DePew tripped home Tim Hogan, who had singled, for the Miners part of holiday fun at Valmeyer tourney

By Dave Whaley
Executive sports editor

The Miners will be up with the roosters on Saturday morning. But it will be worth it to participate in one of the area's premier baseball tournaments.

The 18th Annual Valmeyer Mid-Summer Classic gets under way Saturday at 9 a.m. when the Miners face Waterloo in the first round of the eight-team tournament. It's the first of four games Saturday. The winners will advance to the championship semifinals on Sunday and the losers will play in Sunday morning's consolation bracket.

The consolation final, the third place game and the championship contest will be played on Tuesday, the Fourth of July.

"It's a great tournament," said Miners player/coach Daren DePew, who played in twice when he played for Edwardsville. "It's run real well and everyone has a good time down there. There's fireworks, plenty of food and they usually have a dance one night."

The Miners could consider themselves fortunate to be in the tournament. The Valmeyer affair has become one of the summer's big events. Valmeyer manager and tournament organizer Dennis Pieper said there is a good waiting list of teams wanting to play.

"Pieper and (Mon-Clair League commissioner) Mel Patton are really happy to have Granite City in the league," said Miners general manager Woody Moat. They told us they had an opening in the tournament at the winter meeting. Daren and I talked about it and we called them and got in. I really enjoy having teams play in tournaments."

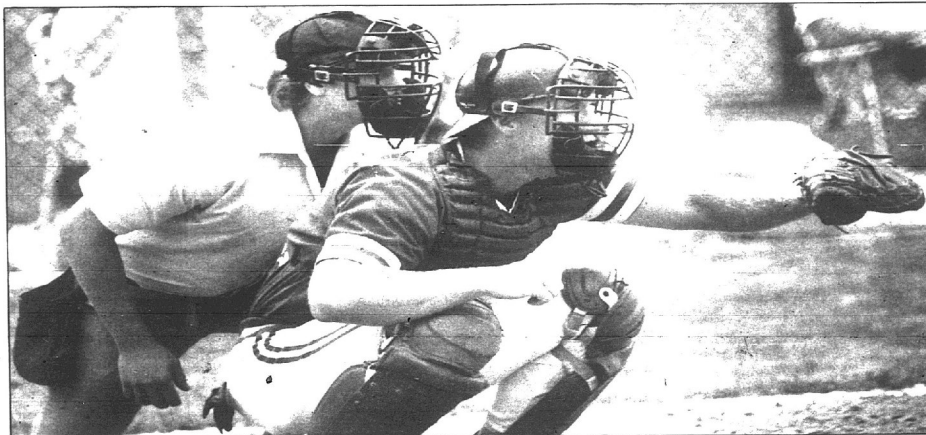

All the games are nine innings. While far from predicting victory, DePew isn't conceding anything.

"The only team that has really stood out all year is Sauget," he said of the tournament's top seed. "Everyone else can beat each other. Anything can happen. If we get past the first one, we could have a shot at it."

The Miners played Waterloo in an exhibition game on Memorial Day and lost 17-12.

"We played pretty well in that game," DePew said. "We're going to be playing at 9 a.m., so it shouldn't be too hot for our pitchers."

Anything can happen at Borsch Memorial Park in Valmeyer, where the fences are friendly for hitters. It's 310 down the line in left and 315 in right. It's only 385 to dead center, 355 in left-center and 365 in right-center.

DAREN DePew will lead the Miners into the 18th Annual Valmeyer Mid-Summer Classic beginning against Waterloo at 9 a.m. Saturday. Granite City will play again Sunday and possibly Tuesday.

Bequette, Cavaness on SWC 1st team

Michelle Bequette and Jennifer Cavaness of Granite City were selected to the all-Southwestern Conference softball team in voting by the coaches.

Bequette, a junior, was named to the team for the third straight year as a catcher. She batted .464 with 15 extra-base hits — including five home runs — and 26 RBIs and was a solid defensive catcher as well. Cavaness, also a junior, was a first-team selection at first base.

Junior shortstop Kim Pawlak, junior outfielder Carrie Bohnenstiel and freshman third baseman Tiffany Winters of the Lady Warriors (9-14) were honorable mention selections to the team in voting done by conference coaches.

Rhoades finally beats Jones

By Joe Senter
Correspondent

GRANITE CITY — Rick Rhoades went bounty hunting Saturday and collected $200 for his trouble.

Rhoades won the street stock car feature at Tri-City Speedway and in the process knocked off Dave Jones, who had won the last seven feature events. The track had put a bounty on Jones and Rhoades collected in the first feature, which was a make-up of the rained out feature from June 17.

Rhoades then won his heat and came back to win the regular feature to give him a clean sweep and a pocketful of money. Don McElroy was the runner-up in the regular main event with Jim Lafferty third. Jones took second in the first feature with

Hodges' double beats O'Fallon

O'FALLON — The Triplets moved to within a game of first place Edwardsville with a 9-5 win at O'Fallon on Wednesday.

Granite City (9-5) trailed 5-3 going into the sixth inning. Rich Schardan and Joe Wallace got RBIs to tie the game before Kurt Hodges doubled in two runs. Kory Burton had three hits to lead a 13-hit attack.

Kevin Wozniak started and went 4½ innings. Chris Wischard relieved and pitched the final 2½ innings to pick up his second win of the summer without a loss.

Brian Harshany will pitch at Varsity Field at 6 p.m. today against Edwardsville (8-3), and the Triplets could pull into a tie for first place in the North Division of District 22. First base has had two wins in a row this week.

Brett Crawford's slow roller to first. Wallace tied the game in the third with his first home run.

but Fulte broke the tie in the fifth after Jeff Schreder drew a walk — one of only two issued by Needham (2-1). Schreder advanced to third on a sacrifice and an infield out before Fulte came through.

It became 4-1 in the sixth when Mike Huggins led off with a double, moved to third on a wild pitch and scored on Steve McCarthy's sacrifice fly to right. Wallace took full advantage of the short 302 porch down the left-field line in the seventh when he hit a pop fly that found its way over.

"Yeah, that was some kid that came in off the street who said he could hit for us," Burnett said of Wallace. "The big thing was that he didn't make any errors brought them home. Joe's home runs came with nobody on base."

Optimists smashed 12-0 by Belleville

By Mike Kelly
Correspondent

SAUGET — The Optimists are following Murphy's Law this week.

That about sums up Granite City's performance of late. The Optimists, who have now lost three in a row, hit rock bottom Wednesday as they were pounded by Belleville 12-0. The game was called after 4½ innings because of the 10-run rule.

The loss dropped Granite City's record to 5-5 in league play and 9-5 overall. Belleville, which remains undefeated in league play at 8-0, improved to 12-1 overall.

Belleville broke the game open with a ten-run burst in the fourth as 14 men batted in the inning. Post 58, which collected nine of its 11 hits in the frame, rocked both losing pitcher Chris Hill and Dave Boley for five runs apiece. Hill, who shut out Centralia on Saturday, is now 1-1.

The inning began harmlessly with an infield single. But soon a pair of walks, three stolen bases, two triples, a two-run double and a three-run inside-the-park home run brought the house down.

Up to that point, it was an entertaining game. But it was scored as quickly as it was called until the last of the third when a controversial call changed the complexion of the game.

Belleville had a runner at first with two outs when Kyle Luge hit a hot smash back to the pitcher. Hill knocked it down, but his throw to first base went across the bag. Rob Terrell reached base on the play. The catch, upon which he collided with Luge.

The ball popped free, and the runner was ruled safe by the infield injury. In the meantime, the other baserunner, John Pawloski, advanced all the way to third.

Granite City manager Paul Kacera argued the call vehemently. "It was a terrible call," he said. "The guy didn't know what to make of the play, so he called him safe. It was horrible and turned the game completely around, because it put the momentum in their favor."

Hill was charged with an error on the play. But the worst was yet to come. Rich Sauget promptly followed with a run-scoring single to left to score Pawloski. But the ball got by Tony Sternberg and rolled to the wall for another error, allowing Luge to score the second run of the inning. The call gave Belleville a 2-0 lead, and Post 58 was on its way to an easy victory.

Granite City, which made five errors on the night, couldn't manage anything offensively, especially in crucial situations. The Optimists lost and stranded nine men.

Winning pitcher Mark Schrand struck out seven, walked two, scattered six hits and hit a batter while raising his record to 4-0.

Granite City was missing three players. Jeff Stephens, Jay Robertson and Ryan Reeves all missed the game because they were in Colorado participating in a soccer tournament.

"We lost some players for various reasons, but we had some people playing out of position," said Granite City coach Carl Benson. "We had a lot of errors that probably wouldn't have occurred if our regulars were there. But by the same token, we didn't perform up to par, and we just couldn't compete against Belleville with the team we had on the field.

"If we had our entire squad here tonight, we could have given Belleville a much better game. That's why we need dedication from the players."

"The coaches put a lot of time and effort into this, and so do the players themselves. But when certain players aren't fully committed to the project, it lets everybody down. We'll work around it this year, but our policy next season will be total dedication to our program. If they don't want to play baseball solely, then they can play for somebody else."

The Optimists fell 10-8 to Roxana on Tuesday. Granite City overcame a 7-2 deficit with a six-run sixth inning. But Roxana scored three times on one hit in the bottom of the inning and snatched away the win. Chris Mance had three RBIs in the losing cause. Mike Norstrom suffered the loss, evening his record at 2-2.

Granite City now has a one-week layoff. They don't play again until Wednesday when the Optimists travel to Jerseyville for a 7 p.m. game. Benson feels the layoff, despite the losing streak, will do the team some good.

"The break is going to do us good," he said. "We'll have everybody back, nurse our injuries, and get ready for the stretch run."

GCC has baseball camp July 10-14

BAC baseball coach Van Smith will conduct a baseball camp at the Granite City Campus on July 10-14.

Boys 9-14 are eligible for the camps. Enrollment will be limited to 75 campers, with a cost of $45. The camp will run from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Monday through Friday at the GCC baseball diamond.

There will be instruction and drills every day. Each player will take home an individualized chart of strengths and weaknesses and will receive a camp T-shirt.

game's first run off starter/loser Phil Heaf in the first. A pair of Troy errors led to four unearned runs in the second. Jamie Hogan singled home one run with an infield hit and Tim Hogan delivered another with a sacrifice fly. A third run scored when Phil Brown dropped the fly ball in right field.

Greco singled another run home and hit his first homer in two weeks in the fourth. Greco later hit a dribbler in front of the plate on which the catcher threw him out. It was the first time in a long while DePew remembered him hitting anything resembling a chinker.

"It's amazing when you think about it," he said. "Tommy always hits it hard."

Things took a turn for the better after a demoralizing doubleheader loss to East St. Louis on Sunday. They won without Tim Wargo, Rich Minder and John Moad, who were all attending summer school. Now the Miners head for Valmeyer and the Mid-Summer Classic. After that, they'll return home on Wednesday and face Sauget for a shot at the league lead.

The game with the Wizards starts at 7:30 p.m. — just the way these creatures of the night like it.

The Triplets had trouble with men on base against Kevin Hoffman, who allowed seven hits, walked three and hit one. Granite City stranded nine runners and left the bases loaded twice with Chris Bartling at the plate. Bartling lined out to Fulte at shortstop to end the second, then was caught looking at strike three to end the sixth.

"Chris just got beat that last time up, but that line drive he hit had gone written all over it," Burnett said. "You like to see him get his swings up there and that was just a tough break."

The Triplets also stranded Rich Schardan, who tripled with one out in the first, when Wallace popped up and Kory Burton flied out.

"We just couldn't get the hit when we needed it, and that's been a problem for us," said Burnett. "But that's a good team we lost to. They are well-coached and well-disciplined. I feel better about this loss than the one at Smithton. And Jamie pitched another good game. Our time will come."

Budget-minded may benefit from some 'brotherly advice'

By Peter Bohr
Staff writer

My sister's instructions to me were pithy, but rather sparse: "You're supposedly an expert on cars. So suggest some good ones for $5,000."

Though price was the only specific she gave me on what she and her fiancé wanted out of a car, I did have a few facts to go on in figuring out "some good ones."

For one thing, I knew they would be moving from West Germany to Washington, D.C., and that they planned to buy a car in California and trek across the country. Which means their car has to be capable of a journey.

And since there's no point in buying a cheapo car only to go bankrupt keeping it on the road, the car should be relatively inexpensive to run. Which rules out Detroit land yachts—the old DeVilles, Impalas and Rivieras that otherwise might be amusing cultural counterpoints to the no-nonsense European cars my sister's fiancé has been around all his life. A big car not only has a big thirst for gas, but requires big tires, a big battery and a big parking space.

With all this in mind, I've come up with several very different suggestions for them:

- The sensible sedan — A 1979-1981 Volvo 240 DL or GL is a delightfully fuel-free, well-made car. Its trunk is huge and its seats can probably accommodate Hulk Hogan in comfort. The fuel economy of these 4-cylinder Volvos is reasonable, at slightly better than 20 mpg. Acceleration isn't neck-snapping, but with a manual transmission performance is adequate for relaxed high-speed touring.
- The entertaining econobox — In this category, a Honda, especially a Civic, is a superb choice. Four to five grand should buy a 1984 or 1985 model. Civics have innovative, yet tasteful and handsome styling. Fuel economy is tops. Reliability is excellent.

And the cars' peppy engines and good handling put some sports cars to shame.

The sports car — Mazda RX-7s are remarkable values.

For well under $4,000, you can buy a 1980 or 1981 model with lots of goodies — sunroof, five-speed transmission and one of the best air conditioners on any import. The powerful rotary engines are long-lived, but they're also very inexpensive to replace when they do wear out. Insurance costs are low for a sports car. On the negative side, the car has room for only two, limited luggage space and a fuel economy rating of slightly under 20 mpg.

'Knock, knock' from car no joke

If your engine "knocks" or "pings" under load, such as when going up a long hill, your mechanic may tell you the timing is off. That also may be the mechanic's diagnosis if your car loses power or is hard to start.

This critical adjustment determines the precise point at which the spark plug will fire, igniting the fuel/air mixture in the combustion chamber.

Many motorists believe that cars with electronic ignition do not require checking of ignition timing. They are wrong. This adjustment is a standard procedure with a tuneup. And if symptoms indicate the need, the adjustment should be performed.

Timing is computer-controlled on many new cars, but on the ATZ vast majority of engines, timing still must be set according to factory specifications. If timing is over-advanced, meaning the spark occurs too soon, you probably will hear engine knock.

When you hear knocking or "pinging" — referred to as "spark knock" — check it out. Beyond timing adjustment, there are other possible causes of this condition, including fuel octane being too low, overheating of the engine, buildup of carbon in the combustion chamber and/or malfunction of the fuel or emission control systems. Whatever the reason, spark knock should be corrected quickly to protect the engine.

POLLUTION VARIANCE

Relilly Industries Inc., located in Granite City, Illinois has filed with the Pollution Control Board a petition for variance under Title IX of the Environmental Protection Act. The Petitioner requests a variance from 35 ill. Adm. Code #307.1102 to allow the discharge of mercury at a concentration up to 0.025 mg/l to the Granite City Wastewater Treatment Plant until August 31, 1990.

The Environmental Protection Agency solicits the views of persons who may be adversely affected by the variance. Address any comments or inquiries to: Richard C. Worthington, EPA, 2200 Churchill Road, P. O. Box 19276, Springfield, IL 62794-9276. (Phone: 217/782-5544)

If a written objection to the variance is received by the Pollution Control Board, State of Illinois Center, 100 West Randolph, Chicago, IL 60601, by July 5, 1989, the Board must conduct a hearing on the petition.
